

Abdirahaman Osman Halani, 2017

Socio-economic Inequality of Maternal Health Care Services Utilization Health in Somalia (2011) and Sudan (2010).

The aims of this study are:

- Examine levels and differentials of maternal health care services utilization two countries under study.
- Figure out factors determining and affecting utilization of maternal health care services within the country and between the two countries.
- Compare the results of the analyses of the two countries in order to raise some important policy implications to increase services utilization.

The researcher depends on Sudan multiple indicator survey (MICS, 2011) and Northeast zone multiple indicators survey (MICS, 2011).