

Assefa Negera, 2007

Determinants of Utilization of Maternal Health Care Services in Ethiopia.

The study tries to examine differentials in utilization of maternal health care services. The main objectives of the study are: to identify and examine the current level of utilization of maternal health care services, to examine differentials in utilization of maternal health care services, and to identify and examine health care services.

The study used Logistic Regression Model. The data sources are based on: Demographic and Health Survey 2000.