Determinants of Child Labor in Yemen 2010 (314).

This study aims at recognizing the characteristics and determinants of child labor in Yemen. The objectives of this study are as follows:

- To examine the levels and characteristics of working children aged (5-17).
- To investigate the characteristics of household and housing conditions of working children.
- To identify the work conditions of working children.
- To examine the determinants effecting the child labor.

The Main source of the data is National Child Labor Survey conducted (NCLS) in 2010.

The study is based on both descriptive and in-depth analysis (regression model) to reach the objectives.
